Why the black face-paint in Border Morris?

In recent years, the black face-paint worn by some Morris sides has caused some controversy.

The usual explanation for the blackened face is that it was for disguise, when out-of-work labourers and farmworkers sought to supplement their income by a bit of anonymous dancing and begging. It was traditionally done using soot.

Whatever the theory, modern Border sides certainly do not attach any racial significance to the blacking of their faces and accept the explanation of “disguise” for the tradition.

Following an incident in January 2017, Sajid Javid, Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, made clear that he saw no racial connotations linked with this tradition, and tweeted -

“Proud of traditional Morris dancers from Alvechurch (in my constituency).

“They are as racist as I am #PloughMonday”

Calling all Foremen

The Morris Ring is looking to develop guidance on good practice at being a Foreman for teaching and practising dance, possibly in conjunction with a wider project involving the other Organisations. To this end, the Bagman is seeking to collect data from foremen as follows:

One email per foreman, with the title of “Foreman’s Handbook,” stating

- name
- side
- dance style(s)

To bagman@themorrisring.org, before the end of October, please.

The email should contain brief answers to the following four questions:

1. State up to three things you always try to do when teaching and practising dance
2. State up to three things you try never to do when teaching and practising dance
3. State the one thing you feel has the greatest impact on the quality of dance of your team
4. Describe briefly the teaching style or approach you find most effective with your side?

The Ring Bagman reserves the right to ignore any essays, polemics, philosophical treatises and over-long responses. There may be opportunity for more detailed input at a later stage in the process. Please demonstrate your experience and expertise through the brevity and efficiency of your responses. Sides with multiple Foremen may submit one each.

I have extended the end date to improve the response rate. Thanks in anticipation, Jon.
Another Morris Ring initiative

The Bagman of the Morris Ring receives many emails. Increasing among them are the ones of this type:

“We would like to start a morris dance troupe in our area. We have seen our local troupe but they are all old and we want to do something different. We’ve learned the basic moves from YouTube and now we would like some advice on getting gigs and festival bookings.”

This sort of thing worries me – material on YouTube is not subject to quality control, and one lousy side at a fete, fair or festival can impact on bookings for many.

It would be nice if potential new sides of young people had an offer of support in their early stages, to learn the basics properly before they do their own thing. Picasso was an excellent draughtsman first, after all.

To this end, I would like to co-ordinate an offer of support to any potential nascent morris sides, or to individuals looking to form them, by putting them in contact with local individuals or teams prepared to help out with an instructional, a workshop, loan of a musician etc. to get their enterprise off the ground. The idea would be to have volunteers across all the regions and dance styles prepared to support the formation of new teams and give them a quality start. I know lots of sides do this already on an ad hoc basis, I’m looking to co-ordinate communication better.

The Ring is also looking at ways to support new teams with discounts at the Morris Shop on bells, books and DVDs.

If you would like to offer your services in this initiative, please email bagman@themorrisring.org with name and contact details (as an individual or a side) and the dance style(s) or music type(s) you are prepared to offer support, demonstration and tuition in.

Thanks again in anticipation, Jon.
